Sheriff: KCSO Not Policing Federal Immigration Violations

By Sverre Bakke White Salmon Enterprise

While he is a supporter of President Donald J. Trump's immigration and deportation policies, Klickitat County Sheriff Bob Songer said federal enforcement agents have not contacted him about KCSO's possible participation in their nationwide immigration enforcement emphasis.

"We do not have the manpower to search for illegal immigrants in our county," Sheriff Songer said in an e-mail response to questions e-mailed to him by The Enterprise on Feb. 23 and Feb. 27.

KCSO provides 24/7 coverage of the county's unincorporated area with 20 commissioned deputies. That includes the sheriff himself and six reserve deputies, Songer said.

The sheriff said KCSO deputies do not ask individuals about their legal statuses in any setting, be it a routine traffic stop or a less-than-routine intervention in a domestic situation. (Songer iterated this policy during the White Salmon City Council's March 15 public hearing on a proposed declaration of diversity and inclusiveness. It is also the policy of the Bingen-White Salmon Police Department, according to Chief of Police Tracy Wyckoff.)

A federal statute exists that authorizes the Immigrations and Customs Enforcement agency (ICE) to deputize local police officers to assist with enforcement of federal immigration laws. Songer said he is aware of it but indicated it won't apply to KCSO.

"I am not interested in obtaining federal commissions for my deputies," he said.

Songer made it clear, however, that KCSO deputies will do their jobs within the bounds of their commissions and jurisdiction, and in cooperation with other law enforcement agencies.

"If ICE comes to me asking for assistance in picking up an individual who has a criminal record, or has a criminal warrant [ordering an arrest], and that individual is an illegal immigrant, I will be happy to assist them," Songer said, and added, "My position would be the same if the FBI came to me wanting assistance in picking up a bank robber in our county, or DEA asking for assistance in picking up a drug violator in our county: we would assist them. We do not need a federal commission to do so."

Undocumented individuals who might be arrested by KCSO deputies would be lodged in the county jail in Goldendale until they could be taken into custody by ICE agents.

"If we arrest an individual for a crime, or have contact with a gang member, and learn that the individual is an illegal immigrant, we will notify ICE of the arrest or the gang member's status," Songer said.

According to Songer, through the first two-plus years of his 4-year term, KCSO has not made any such arrests that he is aware of. He also said the county does not have a gang problem. However, he had stern words for the undocumented who are here and involved in illegal activities.

"Illegal immigrants that are committing crimes or are gang members need to be deported, and I will assist the federal government in getting that job done," Songer said. "In short, I support President Trump in deporting illegal immigrants that are criminals or gang members."

The sheriff also supports the policy of self-reporting for other classes of undocumented residents of America who are here illegally.

"Those illegal immigrants that are not committing crimes need to go through the proper paperwork to become U.S. citizens," he said.

At the state level, Gov. Jay Inslee signed an executive order on Feb. 23 that "reiterates Washington's continued commitment to its policies on services to immigrants and outlines additional actions to ensure state agencies are clear on their expected roles and responsibilities with respect to law enforcement and data collection."

The order, as it applies to the Washington State Patrol, doesn't interfere with efforts by state or federal officials to uphold the law, according to the Governor's Office.

"U.S. law set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court in Arizona v. United States in 2012 upheld that state and local law enforcement agencies are generally prohibited from arresting people solely for violation of civil immigration laws," noted a Feb. 23 press release from the Governor's Office.

Said Inslee in the same release, "Our officers are here to keep the public safe by enforcing the criminal laws, not to act as ICE officers or enforce civil infractions."

The order, which became effective immediately upon Inslee's signature, states that, "to the full extent allowed under federal law, state agencies will not deny services on the basis of citizenship or legal status, will not information beyond what is necessary to perform agency duties and will not use agency resources to assist with creation of a registry based on religion or apprehension of persons for civil immigration infractions."

Songer, when asked for his opinion of the governor's executive order, said only, "Gov. Inslee has a right to his position."

Book Report
By Judy Bane
“The Divorce Papers”
by Susan Rieger

Sparkling and sophisticated, this sometimes hilarious, sometimes heartbreaking debut novel tells the story of a very messy, very high-profile divorce and the endearingly cynical young lawyer dragooned into handling it.

Twenty-nine-year-old Sophie Diehl is happy toiling away as a criminal law associate at an old-line New England firm, where she very much appreciates that most of her clients are trapped behind bars. Everyone at Traynor, Hand knows she abhors face-to-face contact, but one week, with all the big partners out of town, Sophie is stuck handling the intake interview for the daughter of the firm's most important client.

After eighteen years of marriage, Mayflower descendant Mia Meiklejohn Durkheim has just been served divorce papers in a humiliating scene at the popular local restaurant, Golightly's. Mia is now locked and loaded to fight her eminent and ambitious husband, Dr. Daniel Durkheim, Chief of the Department of Pediatric Oncology at Mather Medical School, for custody of their ten-year-old daughter Jane. Mia also burns to take him down a peg. Sophie warns Mia that she's never handled a divorce case before, but Mia can't be put off. The way she sees it, it's her first divorce, too. For Sophie, the whole affair will spark a hard look at her own relationships - with her parents, colleagues, friends, lovers, and, most important, herself.

A rich, layered novel told entirely through personal correspondence, office memos, e-mails, articles, handwritten notes, and legal documents, The Divorce Papers offers a direct window into the lives of an entertaining cast of characters never shy about speaking their minds. Original and captivating, Susan Rieger's brilliantly conceived and expertly crafted debut races along with wit, heartache, and exceptional comedic timing, as it explores the complicated family dynamic that results when marriage fails - as well as the ever-present risks and coveted rewards of that thing called love.

Community Council Corner

By Pj Sisseck

Darren Lacock has withdrawn from the Community Council. Sally Swing has volunteered to fill the vacancy.

Tyler and Pierce from Dirt Huggers, the composting business located in the Industrial area east of Highway 197. They currently employ from 5 to 12 people, depending on seasonal volume, and are looking for two experienced heavy equipment mechanics.

They want the public to know that on Mondays, drop-off of yard debris is free for Dallesport area residents. This year, they will do free deliveries of orders of three cubic yards or more. Prices are posted at www.dirthugger.com. If you should notice odor from the operation, please call 541-946-DIRT, so the problem can be quickly addressed.

William Malley is submitting a new application to build housing on Block C. The new plan has 10,000 square foot lots, and the Fire Department has no objections to the proposal. Provided all stipulations of the County code are met, the Council also has no objections.

We are going to have a new Comp Plan committee that will look at our previous submission and resubmit a plan to the county. We are going to attend a comp plan training session. Training sessions for interested parties will be at the Pioneer Center in White Salmon on May 16th, 5:30 to 8:30 PM. Please attend the April meeting for more information. A representative from the State Planning Department has been invited for a seminar, tentatively scheduled for June.

Please join us for the next Council meeting on April 13th, 7pm at the Dallesport Community Center. The guest speakers will be representatives from Klickitat PUD, with their annual update.

Lyle School Board Issues Statement

Thursday morning Tria Bullard, chair of the Lyle School District Board, issued a statement on Superintendent Andrew Kelly's citing Sunday night on charges of DUI and Reckless Endangerment. Her statement is as follows:

"The Lyle School District Board of Directors was informed by the superintendent that on Sunday, March 12 he was involved in a situation that resulted in charges being filed. We have no evidence that these charges or the circumstances presently impact his ability to perform his day-to-day responsibilities. We will continue to monitor and assess the situation as it evolves. Like any other personnel matter, the board respects the confidential nature of the situation and wants Mr. Kelly to get the time and support he needs to fully address the issue. The board asks that our community continue to offer the same support. The health and well-being of our students and staff remains the board's top priority."

Additional Preschool Class

Lyle Community School is making an additional preschool class available beginning on March 20. Parents looking for a high quality, reasonably priced, local preschool program for their three- or four-year-olds are encouraged to check this program out. An open house will be held from 9:15 – 10 a.m., Wednesday, March 20, at the Lyle K-12 school, 625 Keasey Avenue, Lyle. Can't attend the open house? Have questions? Please call (509) 365-2211. Also in school news: they are hiring bus drivers and subs. If you like driving and enjoy being around kids, think about becoming a bus driver for Lyle schools, especially if you have a CDL or are interested in earning one. If you meet the requirements, the pay is $17.78 to $20 per hour. You'll get at least 20 hours a week, with holidays and school breaks off, full benefits for you and your family, a retirement plan and more! The district also needs both para-educator (teaching assistant) and teaching subs on an on-going basis. Stop by the district office for an application packet or read more on their website, <http://www.lyleschools.org> (under "Our District," pull down to "Employment").

Nominees Exemplify District's Commitment to Kids

Two Lyle Community Schools staff members are in the running for prestigious state awards: Lyle Secondary School Administrative Assistant Jennifer

Machado has been nominated for the State Classified Employee of the Year Award, and kindergarten teacher Shelly Spadaro has been nominated for the State Teacher of the Year.

Both awards are sponsored by the state Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI) and have rigorous application requirements. "Our district motto is 'all means all,' and I am proud to nominate two individuals who exemplify our unshakeable belief in children," Superintendent Andy Kelly notes.

Machado and Spadaro share a passion for children, especially those whose home lives are difficult. "The hardest part of my job is seeing kids that are just trying to survive," Machado says. "These are the ones that break your heart: You just want to take them home and give them everything you can. I simply love them up, do the best I can for them while they are here and watch them shine regardless of their situation." She and Spadaro agree that the constantly changing, busy K-12 school environment keeps them on their toes, yet makes their jobs enjoyable. "What I love most about my job is its unpredictability. I never know what to expect from year to year or even day to day," Spadaro explains.

Machado's title is hardly adequate to reflect the multiple responsibilities she deftly handles on a daily basis. Secondary math teacher John Bister's letter of recommendation reflects this, saying: "I have worked in education for 14 years in cities as far flung as Chicago, New York, and Portland – and Jen is by far the most talented secretary, treasurer, IT guru, testing coordinator, event planner, mother and life coach I have ever encountered."

Machado grew up in a highly mobile family that followed oil field work through Wyoming, North Dakota, California, and Nevada. She recalls never attending the same school two years in a row until 8th grade. "I finished up high school in the closest thing to a hometown I ever had before Lyle --Tehachapi, California," she says. She and her husband have lived in the Columbia Gorge for 12 years, raising three children; her two daughters graduated from Lyle High School and her third, a son, still attends Lyle High School.

She has worked for Lyle Schools since 2008 and says the district truly has become a family affair. Her oldest daughter, Shelby, who is pursuing a teaching degree, is also a para-educator in Spadaro's kindergarten classroom and her second daughter, Morgan, is the school's middle school basketball coach. Like Machado, Spadaro grew up all around the country before her family settled in Seattle in her early teen years. She completed her high school education there and went on to attend Washington State University, earning a Bachelor of Science in Psychology and a Masters in Education. She's been a public school teacher in Washington for the past 23 years, and has taught kindergarten in Lyle for the past 10 years.

She has been a resident of the Mid-Columbia Gorge area for 27 years, moving here a week after getting married to her husband, Jason, who was beginning a career at SDS Lumber. Spadaro's spare time in the winter is largely devoted to her kids' participation on ski racing teams. Two children in their early 20's have moved on to other pursuits, but one child, a 13-year-old son, still competes. Spadaro is also currently working to complete the Teacher of the Year application, which is especially rigorous. It requires not only letters of recommendation and a resume, but the nominee must complete five essays detailing their classroom practices, philosophy and accomplishments. Candidates selected as the regional teacher of the year will be invited to the Olympia /Seattle area for a leadership retreat and celebration ceremony early in September.

After over two decades as a teacher, Spadaro says there are things about the job that are difficult; the lack of time, increasing discipline issues, and not being able to fix some of the kids' home lives. But the reason she comes back every year is simple, she says: "I love the kids."

Lyle Community Schools Launches Mentorship Program

In the Lyle School District, the entire school community has embraced the slogan #ALLmeansALL. This means everyone -- from bus drivers to coaches, staff to school board -- is on board and holds the same high expectations for each and every one of its students.

To ensure that each student is able to achieve at this level, the staff also knows it must provide some students more; more time, more support, more practice, more opportunity.

Now, there will also be more mentorship through a formal volunteer mentor program.

Lyle Schools will launch the Reaching Individual Students Everyday (R.I.S.E.) Mentorship Program this spring. Applications are being accepted now, and the first training will be provided before mentors and mentees are introduced.

Research shows that a mentor -- a screened, trained adult -- can help provide the connection that encourages emotional well-being, healthier social skills and improved academic performance for kids.

In rural communities, where people pride themselves on being independent, kids and parents may have trouble acknowledging that they could use some support. Yet, a substantial number of our students could use another adult to provide a connection they can depend on.

Nearly two-thirds of Lyle School District's students qualify for free-and-reduced lunch, an indicator of poverty, and 28 percent of the student body meet the federal definition of homeless. But even students in stable homes can often benefit from a mentor.

The district has already put in place programs and staff to meet the needs of the kids in the school setting, but mentors can provide a different type of connection in a non-supervisory role.

"It is our goal to connect our amazing students with community member mentors who share our vision that each and every student can succeed," Superintendent Andrew Kelly notes. "We are looking for community mentors who have a little bit of time and a lot of life experience to offer to support our kids as they move to high school graduation and beyond."

The school team will facilitate monthly conversations so that mentors are prepared and well-supported in the grade level/developmental conversations that need to happen to ensure the success of a mentee. "All we need from you is your time, expertise and belief in our kids," Kelly says. With community members who support the same high expectations as staff and the school board, tremendous things can happen for our kids.

To learn more or to apply for the RISE mentorship program, please call Heather Lopez at heather.lopez@lyleschools.org or 509-365-2211, or Superintendent Kelly at the same number. A fillable application form is also available on the district webpage at <http://bit.ly/2oaovUM>.
