Lyle Schools Board of Directors Approves LEA Contract

The Lyle School District Board of Directors voted unanimously to approve a one-year agreement with the Lyle Education Association, the district's teachers' union, at a special board meeting Thursday, December 6. The contract provides a 15 percent raise to the district's 17.9 full-time equivalent (FTE) teachers for the current school year, 2018-2019.

"We are pleased to reach this agreement, but we also know that with the current state funding situation, we could have to make tough decisions affecting student programs this spring," Superintendent Ann Varkados, Ed.D, notes.

Bargaining parties reached the tentative agreement Friday evening, November 30. The union voted Monday morning, December 3, to ratify the contract, with 100 percent approval by the membership. Long at the lowest end of teacher pay in the state, Lyle's teachers advocated for a substantial increase.

A new state school funding structure approved by the legislature in 2017 precipitated the extended negotiations. The legislation included more funding designated specifically for the state's teachers, but also dramatically limited local school tax collections, and local control of how state dollars are spent.

The state will provide Lyle Schools just under $211,000 in additional funding for teacher salaries, but the extra state funding is less than what the district will lose in levy dollars.

In 2017, local voters approved a two-year levy that expires at the end of 2019. The district will be able to collect up to $1,049,000 in 2018 for student programs, as previously approved by our voters. But, due to the new legislation, the district will be able to collect less than one-half of that in 2019 -- $513,292 -- despite prior voter approval. These figures are based on an analysis developed by the Educational Service District #112 in Vancouver, a wing of the State Superintendent's Office (OSPI).

Unfortunately, the complex and inequitable funding system adopted by the legislature has made the process of bargaining labor contracts exceptionally difficult for districts throughout the state. Like many of those school districts -- particularly small, rural districts -- Lyle is facing a budget challenge this year and in the foreseeable future, unless the details of this legislation are revisited.

"We will continue to diligently uphold our commitment to both our staff and to our community, even as we lobby the state legislature to find fair solutions to the funding crisis it inadvertently created," Board Chair Barbara Mills said.

New Bookmobiles Help Bring Library to Public

New mobile libraries are on the road and coming to rural communities in Skamania and Klickitat Counties. Fort Vancouver Regional Libraries is proud to introduce two new bookmobiles to replace the aging bookmobiles that combined serve over 35 stops throughout the region.

After two years of planning, consulting, design and building, the new bookmobiles started rolling out to communities in late October. Among the new features is a much-requested wheelchair lift, which will not only provide additional access for patrons, it allows library staff to easily take book carts into remote locations as well.

"The enthusiastic response to the new bookmobile has been fantastic. It reaffirms the importance of supporting access to information whether you get it in a building, through your smartphone, or on four wheels," said David Wyatt, branch manager for Stevenson Community Library, which provides service for the bookmobile covering Skamania County and West Klickitat.

The new FVRLibraries bookmobiles were custom-built for the library district by Farber Specialty Vehicles in Columbus, Ohio, on a Freightliner chassis. Each vehicle is 28 feet long, 11 feet tall, weighs 25,000 pounds, and holds approximately 2,000 items.

The library district anticipates the lifespan for the vehicles to be 12 to 15 years, the same as the 15-year-old bookmobiles they are replacing. The new bookmobiles cost approximately $270,000 each for their design and construction.

A map of all FVRLibraries' bookmobile stops as well as printable schedules can be found at <http://www.fvrl.org/bookmobiles>

Community Council Corner

By PJ Sisseck & Renee Briggs
Community Council Report for December 13, 2018

Our speakers were Justine Ziegler and Janet Mata from "The Next Door", an umbrella organization for assorted community and family strengthening agencies. Their services include economic development activities, youth mentoring, counseling and health education, and treatment options for children in foster care. At this point, The Next Door is overseeing thirty social-service programs spread throughout a seven county area along the Columbia River. While headquartered in Hood River, a facility is located in The Dalles. Eleven of the organization's seventy-seven employees have offices in The Dalles.

Brad Swing, on behalf of the Dallesport-Murdock Volunteer Fire Department, urges everyone to check all flues, chimneys, and dryer vents, and do any needed maintenance. One tragic loss of a home and two pets has already occurred in our community – we do not want any repeat incidents.

Kim McCarty's life is taking him in other directions, so he has submitted his resignation from the Community Council, effective as of the end of the December meeting. Not to worry – he and his wife still intend to oversee the Ice Cream operation through the summer of 2019. We thank Kim and Kathy for their commitment to public service.

Bazaar Proceeds

Many thanks go out to Barbara Rauch for hosting the annual Christmas Bazaar in December. Due to the fact that the venue this year was much smaller than in years past, only about half as much money from table rent was taken in. We are still happy to announce a donation of $362.00 each to the Dallesport Fire Dist and the Dallesport Murdock Community Council.

Thanks again this year to Kim and Cathy McCartney for bringing Santa & Mrs. Clause to the Christmas Bazaar.

The next meeting of the Dallesport-Murdock Community Council is scheduled for January 10th, 7 PM, at the Community Center on 6th. We are expecting a report from the Port Authority on industrial activities and shipping in our area.

Restrictions In China Hit Klickitat County In Recycling

Changes in China are having an immediate effect here in Klickitat

County. These changes include what can and cannot be recycled.

The changes are a result in China's restrictions on recycling, which limit what types of recycling is deemed recyclable. Klickitat County Solid Waste will soon be sending out updated flyers of what is and is not recyclable around the middle of December, according to Averie Morgan, the Recycling Coordinator for Klickitat County Solid Waste.

The main changes are what cannot be included in recycling. The Recycling Program will no longer accept any plastic bags or shredded paper. They will only accept PET 1 and HDPE 2 plastic bottles; any other types must be disposed in the trash. To find the bottle type, check the bottom for the number in the recycling symbol.

These rules will go into effect starting Jan. 1. People who violate the new policies will receive notices telling them what they recycled is no longer accepted. For more information or questions, contact the Solid Waste office at 773-4448.

Levy Renewal on Ballot February 12

This comes in a year that the district needs to run its next replacement levy in order to maintain some local funding. The board has voted to place that levy on the ballot on February 12, 2019. If the levy is approved, the district will collect significantly less than what residents are currently supporting.

Since joining the school district last July, Dr. Varkados has worked closely with the district business manager and state school financial experts to develop an understanding of the district's current financial picture, and the impacts the change in state funding will have. "Our budget is about as lean as it can get, with the possible exception of class size," Dr. Varkados noted during the Dec. 6 meeting. Principal Lori Smith added that she is working on strategies to provide high-quality instruction as cost-efficiently as possible.

Even at this reduced amount, the levy is essential to maintain the school's current programs at this crucial juncture.

Sneak Peak at Society Hotel Bingen

The Society Hotel Bingen, currently under construction and opening in May 2019, offered Mt. Adams Chamber of Commerce members a “construction preview” last Thursday evening.

The Society Hotel Bingen owners Matt Siegel, Jessie Burke, Jonathan Cohen, and Carrington “Ceb” Barrs, as well as some of the The Society Hotel in Portland staff, were on hand to offer groups of individuals tours of the facility.

The owners are introducing their hostel-meets-boutique-hotel model to the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area. They are renovating the 80-year-old historic Bingen Schoolhouse to provide affordable adventure lodging and spa services.

Cozy private spaces and welcoming gathering areas are a signature of The Society Hotel, and the Bingen location will feature many of these amenities. Like the original Society Hotel in Portland, the Bingen school is being renovated and revitalized to add modern comforts while retaining original architectural and design features. Of note: the wooden floors from the former school have been repurposed, as has some of the school’s wainscot and windows.

The hotel features two 24-bed bunkrooms which include a few fancy plusses like privacy curtains, outlets, storage cubbies and reading lights for each bunk; 10 European-style standard hotel rooms which will be small, private rooms, with queen and king beds, storage and shared restrooms; and 20 modern cabins which will encircle a meadow, firepit, and the bathhouse and spa, which includes a café of its own. The cabins sleep up to 4 people, include small kichenettes and dining areas and private outdoor spaces. Cost for accommodations will vary from a low of $35 to $45 for a bunk up to $200 a night for a cabin.

A bright, airy lobby will feature ample seating and house a curated café/bar with outdoor seating in the summer serving healthy snacks, regional coffees, teas, and pastries, as well as cocktails, beer, and wine.

The hallowed original gym will be restored and serve as a multipurpose room for everything from shooting hoops to corporate meetings. The original floor and bleachers will remain intact.

One of the most unique features of the Society Hotel Bingen is its “Sanctuary.” This unique subterranean building can be reserved for retreats or other groups of travelers for personal use, yoga, team-building retreats, and wellness. It’s flooded with natural light through a cupola and large, south-facing glass doors.

The bathhouse and spa feature skylights and fold-away glass walls help to bring the outdoors indoors every season of the year, massage rooms, saltwater soaking pool, large, covered outdoor hot tub, a sauna, a cold plunge, and a bar with fresh juice drinks, kombucha, beer and cocktails, and healthy snacks. The plan is to offer day-passes to non-guests to use this portion of the facility.

In addition to remodeling of the old building and construction of the new elements, The Society owners are also spending $400,000 of their $9 million construction project funds on landscaping and landscaping elements. Their goal is to make the outside as nice as the inside.

“We want the hotel to be design worthy of a New York Times article,” said owner Barrs. He added that’s what happened to the Portland hotel which is the highest booked hotel in the city.

The original Bingen schoolhouse was built in 1908 and burned down in 1933. The new Bingen School complex was designed by Pacific Northwest architect Donald J. Stewart and built in 1937 by the Civilian Conservation Corps, a public work relief program that operated from 1933 to 1942 for unemployed, unmarried men as part of the New Deal.

The 7,500-square-foot schoolhouse served as the school for Bingen and White Salmon, from 1938 until the 1970s. In 1988, it was converted into a hostel, which offered private rooms and dormitory style accommodations. Reprinted with permission from The Enterprise

History of Railroading in the Columbia River Gorge featuring Bill Burgel

Railroads have been in the Columbia Gorge for over 150 years. Today, more than 80 trains daily transverse the Gorge. Hear about the history of Railroading in the Columbia River Gorge from Bill Burgel, former Chief Train Dispatcher for Union Pacific at the Columbia Gorge Discovery Center & Museum, 5000 Discovery Drive, The Dalles, Oregon. An optional dinner begins at 6 p.m., followed by the 7 p.m. presentation.

The Columbia Gorge is the lowest and arguably the easiest path through the Cascades mountain range. As such it has been a preferred transportation route for millennia. Despite significant engineering challenges the railroads have used this path for well over a century. US Railroading began near Baltimore in 1830 and in the Columbia River Gorge in 1865. Both were modest efforts only to expand greatly in subsequent years.

Bill Burgel, former Chief Train Dispatcher for Union Pacific, is a geologist with Degrees in engineering and structural geology from the University of Michigan and Idaho State University. He worked in various capacities within the railroad industry for the past 48 years, including evaluating and monitoring earthquake risks to railroads in The Gorge. Since retiring in 2010 he is using his geology background to help people become better prepared to survive an earthquake emergency.

The dinner menu is Chicken Marsala, pear salad and couscous pilaf with dessert included. Beer and wine are available for purchase. Call 541-296-8600 x 201 or visit www.gorgediscovery.org to purchase tickets online.

Dancing With The Gorge Stars

Jan. 11, 2019 7pm – 10pm

Back by popular demand, six Gorge Stars will compete for your votes at this mid-winter fundraiser. Similar to the reality TV dance show, contestants learn a routine prior to show time. But in this show, the competitors are our friends and neighbors from the gorge area. Paired with a professional dancer from the Utah Ballroom Dance Co., they spend many hours practicing their routines. Video highlights of the rehearsals are included in the program when the beautifully costumed contestants perform for our concert. An entertaining judging-panel of locals scores each team at the end of the competition. Audience votes are then tallied to determine who wins the beautiful mirrored trophy. While the ballots are being tallied, the Utah Dance Co. entertains with a professional showcase featuring a variety of highly technical dancing.

This is a fundraiser for the Mid-Columbia Community Concert Association and therefore is not included in the series of 5 regular season performances.

Tickets are available at Klindt's Bookstore, Lines of Designs and The Dalles Area Chamber of Commerce, or from any contestant. The Dalles High School 220 E 10th St, The Dalles
